

Plant Identification Guide

The Garden at the South Waterfront

Purpose

This guide is provided for the plant enthusiast who visits the garden and is intrigued by the myriad of materials growing there.

The garden was established in 1999. As the garden grows and matures over the coming years, plants will be adjusted and some will be changed. This guide is intended to describe the framework of the plan within which continued evolution will occur.

The Garden

South Waterfront Park's unifying theme is the blending of patterns of the city with the natural forms of the river. The garden was designed within the context of the park's theme as an elegant profusion of perennials, shrubs and groundcovers, supported by an architectural framework of manicured hedges; an intimate and lush green world, maintained in a loose and natural style. The garden changes dramatically throughout the year, giving visitors the opportunity to connect with the passing seasons, and the rituals of outdoor life. The plants are allowed to grow into and around their neighbors, creating a tapestry of contrasting texture and color.
